DISCRIMINATION.

It appears to be the custom in this country for large corporations to discriminate against the smaller towns and villages in almost all lines of business. Sometimes lack of competition is the cause of this discrimination while other times it is simply a case of imposing on the public just so long as the public will stand for it.

In this connection Redcliff is, in our opinion, being grossly discriminated against by the great C. P. R. corporation. This company has a cheap excursion rate of about nine dollars return for Medicine Hat to Banff, while Redcliff, which is six miles nearer Banff, the regular rate of something like $15.00 is charged. When we consider that, from a financial standpoint, Redcliff is one of the very best towns for the C. P. R. on their main line from Brandon, Man., to Calgary, we think we are quite within the mark in saying that our citizens are being given a very raw deal.

NO ALTERNATIVE.

There are some people in town complaining about the action of the council in limiting the use of water for garden and lawn purposes. If we happened to have a bad fire in town and had no water in the tank to fight it, it's dollars to doughnuts these very same people would be the first to raise a holler and charge the council with gross carelessness.

Any who face this circumstance fairly and squarely will undoubtedly see that the council had no alternative. Conditions are well known to all, consequently it is not necessary to go fully into them here. In our opinion the shortening of the hours will have no serious effect on the gardens. They will have to wait a good while for a good start and what they need more than cold water is a little elbow grease on the end of a hoe. The abuse of the water privileges and the excessive heat have caused the ground to bake and cake like cement. Many gardeners have been laboring under the delusion that because the water softens the ground up for the time being it is doing the work of the hoe or cultivator. According to all rules of scientific gardening and land cultivation nothing could be more absurd.

POOR PROTECTION.

Ever since the Dominion government withdrew the service of the Mounted Police from the rural districts, and the provincial police have been trying to fill their place, there has been a noticeable increase in the number of petty thefts throughout the country. This is particularly noticeable in the country, and the unfortunate part of it is that few of the offenders are being brought to justice.

Only the other day a farmer west of town told us that he has some stuff stolen from his premises. He notified the provincial police and was informed they couldn't put a man on the job before the end of the month. Just imagine such services. Here are three or four provincial police stationed in Medicine Hat where they have an efficient city police force and yet they can't go out to investigate reported robberies till two weeks after the deed is done.

— This certainly is poor protection after the capable and efficient been those in Canada who have advocated the doing away with the right of appeal to the privy council and establishing our own highest court in the land. The unfairness of the present system of appeal to the privy council has been demonstrated on several occasions, the latest one being the decision handed out in the case of the city of Toronto against the street railway company of that city.

A DEMONSTRATION ROAD.

To assist municipalities to avoid the expense and annoying mistakes made by so many municipalities during the process of road making the Ontario department of public works has prepared a special report.

This report deals with the treatment of gravel and macadam roadways, the laying out of roads and the two important items of drainage and foundation, besides several other matters which, judging from the average country roads, very few road masters appear to know anything about.

This is a splendid idea and one which might be followed by our western provinces.

In an agricultural province such as Alberta is the question of good roads is a most important one and it would be well if our government would undertake some plan whereby those responsible for the making of roads could be taught how to build them properly.

To our mind one of the best ways would be to have stretches of demonstration roads scattered throughout the province. These roads would be laid out, supervised and built by experienced road makers on scientific plans. They could be visited and examined by the different municipal or government road masters who would then learn how to make roads in their own districts.

We have demonstration farms to teach farmers how to farm scientifically. Then since there is so much government money spent annually in supposed road making why not have demonstration roads.

One of the best places to make a start at a demonstration road would be from here, down past the demonstration farm, to Medicine Hat. There is probably no six miles in the province more travelled than this.

Redcliff's member is interested in Medicine Hat and he should be a little bit interested in Redcliff. This would be a good opportunity for him to jump into the line-listing and start something.

Of all the general stores, drug stores, book stores, pool rooms, barber shops, banks, butcher shops, baker shops, blacksmith shops, shoemakers, lawyers, doctors, dentists, grocers, furniture stores, groceries, restaurants, manufacturing plants, city schools, school trustees, clerks, farmers, teachers, preachers, printers and hotels; of all these represented in Redcliff only nine people turned out to the public meeting called to arrange for the celebration here on Labor Day. Its about time that cemetery committee of the council set busy and decided on a site.

The British food controller announces that in the near future there will be a reduction of 25 per cent in the price of bread, there will also be a 30 per cent reduction in the price of meats.

No doubt a large percentage of flour and meat consumed in the old country is shipped right from our very doors, yet no such reduction is even hinted at in Canada. But then they have no Baron Flavelles in the old country, so what's the use. Canada can't expect anything.

In one of his books Tolstai predicted that about this time a man would be produced who would be the Napoleon of Russia, to lead his people out of their trouble and place Russia among the leading nations of the world. It is now beginning to look as though these predictions are coming true and that Alexander F. Kerensky is the man.

For some time there have been those in Canada who have advocated the doing away with the right of appeal to the privy council and establishing our own highest court in the land. The unfairness of the present system of appeal to the privy council has been demonstrated on several occasions, the latest one being the decision handed out in the case of the city of Toronto against the street railway company of that city.

Talk about re-embanking the hotels for doing them out of their licenses, but judging from the trouble the council is having to supply the people with water this last year it might be in order to re-embank the town as well.

While big men in the Liberal party like Michael Clark, Rowell, Guinness, McLean, Garver, Clifford Sirton and others in Canada are saying this is no time for a general Dominion election, the Medicine Hat News says "The election cannot come too soon."

Daylight Saving Get

Cool Reception

The unexpected happened when, after considerable discussion, Sir George Foster's bill respecting daylight saving, after receiving second reading, met with almost unanimous opposition from the members of the house present. Members on both sides of the issue vigorously opposed the proposal to advance the clock one hour during the summer months. The representatives of rural constituencies, including a number of western members, appeared to be all against the proposed innovation. They said that while it might suit merchants and professional men who wanted to get away earlier in the day in order to play golf an hour longer, it would prove to be a hardship in the case of farmers, who would have to get up even earlier than they do now.

Owing to this opposition, to the bill will not likely be brought up again for discussion.

Government Must

Not Own People

"The commonwealth of peoples should continue to carry forward the crusade in which they are engaged to the point where no material, despotic government remains," said Winston Churchill, recently appointed minister of munitions, in speaking to his constituents recently.

"Henceforth," he continued, "it must not be true that in any part of the world a government owns the people; but, on the contrary, everywhere the people must control their own fate. The hateful system of military autocracy must be abolished."

"We have only to hold until the United States throws its whole strength into the struggle to make the victory complete. England is the center of a mighty league of nations. If we fail, all fail; if we break, all break. Our dangers are great, but our opportunity is incomparable."

U. S. Will Supply

Neutrals in Future

Plans by which the United States will supply Great Britain of the task of rationing the European neutral countries have about reached completion. Within a short time, it was learned, the British system of issuing letters of assurance for American exports to the neutrals will be entirely superseded by the export license arrangement. Although the United States has been issuing export licenses for nearly a week, shipments licensed have no guarantee against British seizure unless letters of assurance are obtained also from the British embassy at Washington. The burden of keeping supplies from reaching Germany, therefore, still rests on the British.

The administration, it was said, has finally determined on a strict rationing plan, and through its agents abroad will keep a close check on the trade between the neutrals and the central powers. Great Britain will continue to supervise shipments to South American countries in Europe.

Will Use Vatelard For U. S. Transport

A Washington dispatch says: "Information was obtained from a field source that the German crown on the imperial merchant ship, the Vatelard, which was interdicted by American ports, failed to cripple the ship, so that it could not be repaired."

"It was stated that $10,000,000 had been set aside as the sum which would be required to repair the ship. Of this amount $500,000 has been taken out of the sum for the repair of the Vatelard, which will be used as a transport. It is said that she will carry about 5,000 American soldiers to France on a single trip."

Good Market for Horses in England

At an auction sale of grade shires held at Sutterton, near Boston, Lincolnshire, England, on July 1st, W. Dennis & Sons, noted potato growers, sold 67 surplus working geldings for an average of £429.25. These geldings were right up to five to eight years old. The top price was $500. They were not fitted for work but were in good working condition. Surely this is evidence that there never was as good a time for the Canadian farmer to breed heavy-bodied, rugged geldings as now. When the war is ended and steamers and ocean insurance can be obtained, the demand for geldings showing plenty of British blood will be far greater than the supply.—Brookers' Gazette.

State of Unrest in British Politics

A recent report from London says: "Domestic politics, despite recent cabinet changes, are still in a state of unrest. The government is determined as a needful war measure to push the corn production through all stages before parliament rises for the summer recess. The bill which proposes to pay fixed prices to farmers for cereal crops for a number of years after the war as a means of inducing them to plow up grass lands and new fields, is meeting with strong opposition in the house of commons, especially from the members of the League to Secure the Bill. The bill proposes to pay laborers a minimum wage of 25 shillings weekly."

WHY REPRISALS ARE DEMANDED.

Here is the reason English mothers are demanding reprisals against the Germans and the British government must take some drastic action to avoid serious trouble at home. A total of 3,416 persons, most of them women and children, have been killed or grievously wounded by German air raids over Great Britain. To avert the actual casualties are very much larger, but the above total has been officially announced.

An accident attended with fatal results occurred at the Dominion arena, at a recent boxing match. A man, named Brown, was instantly killed, and another, Gordon Stinson, was fatally injured. The two men were within the danger zone and either killed or dropped a box containing some explosive.
